BOTTOM LINE HIT FOR SIX

Despite big crowds and appearances in the Twenty20 Cup final at Hampshire's Rose Bowl (pictured) and Friends Provident Trophy final at Lord's, Kent have been hit hard by the economic collapse and even the disappointing wet summer. For the latest on the club - see the sport section on pages 50-51.

■ BY CHRIS BRITCHER

A STRING of major off-the-field commercial blows have left Kent Cricket Club chiefs counting the cost as they recorded a £706,536 loss last year.

The figures, released on Monday, reveal the hefty pre-tax operating losses for the year to October 31, 2008.

It will come as the latest blow to the club which has already seen the recession smash for six its ambitious multi-million pound plans to redevelop its St Lawrence Ground on the Old Dover Road.

In addition to those plans being forced to be put on hold - having already cost the club a cool £1m in architects fees in obtaining planning permission - seven staff members were made redundant.

Club chairman George M Kennedy described the results as "extremely disappointing".

Ironically, the club had one of its more successful campaigns on the pitch, reaching the final of the two major domestic one-day competitions - although lost out in both - which helped smash budgets for match day revenue.

However, the season ended on a disappointing note when the club were relegated from the County Championship for the first time in its history.

The club's honorary treasurer, Alister Dunning, said: "At the time our budgets were prepared [in 2007] we, in common with people everywhere, did not foresee the extent of the economic downturn awaiting us."

"The final stage in securing planning permission was signed in January 2008, so by the

Charity rocks Ethan's world with gift horse

■ BY CHRIS BRITCHER

AT just five-years-old, little Ethan Gavin has fought many brave battles as he struggles to contend with Tuberous Sclerosis; an illness which has left him needing constant specialist care.

His condition causes a variety of disorders in his young body – leaving various major organs with disorders, as well as prompting epilepsy and communication difficulties; to the extent he can not communicate through speech.

But despite the difficulties, the much-loved little boy has developed a very special bond with a classic children's toy.

In the waiting room at London's Kings College Hospital Ethan has found precious joy and escape on the back of a beautiful rocking horse. He has spent hours on its back as he prepares for more gruelling treatment.

Such has been his love affair with the wooden beast, his family must now leave their home in Whitstable 45 minutes earlier so he can spend time on the horse before he undergoes his crucial treatment.

But on Thursday, little Ethan was made the happiest boy in the world when his wish of owning his very own rocking horse came true.

Courtesy of the Make-A-Wish-Foundation UK, a charity which looks to grant the wishes of children and young people fighting life-threatening illnesses, he was treated to a special day, culminating in being presented with his very own horse.

Initially picked up in a luxury limousine along with his mum, Jennifer, dad David and his brother Harry, he was first driven in style to the Windchimes Centre in Herne Bay.

There, he received VIP treatment and had fun playing in the sensory room and soft-play areas with his brother.

The family were then picked up and taken to Frankie and Benny's in Ashford for a slap-up lunch.

Then Ethan was driven to the Stevenson Brothers' Rocking Horse Shop in Betherston to discover how rocking horses are made.

The highlight of the wish was when he was presented with his very own hand carved rocking horse to take home and treasure.

Ethan's parents said of the wish: "It was a very special day for Ethan. When we saw the rocking horse it just blew us all away."

Stevenson Brothers are world renowned for their horses and have provided many to the rich and famous and their children.

Ground plans stalled after club spent £1m on planning permission

time we hoped to sign the agreement with our partners the downturn was already starting to take effect.

"We spent around £1m on getting our planning permission through and this sum is shown in the capital account.

"This is money we have had to find, but that figure does not take into account the values of those three plots of land [the Bat and Ball field, practice area and potential hotel plot] which have considerably increased now that planning permission is in place."

In addition to plans for the ground stalling due to the economic downturn and collapse of the housing market – the plans rely heavily on generating money by selling the car park area opposite the Bat and Ball pub for housing – there have been other knock-on effects.

Expected sponsorship payments fell £100,000 short from the redevelopment partners and projected interest on capital receipts of around £125,000.

Shortfall

A damp summer hit 14 days play during home games, with a resultant drop in gate receipts, catering spend and profits from the club's shops.

Though the Spitfires reached two one-day finals – the Twenty20 Cup and Friends Provident Trophy – additional knockout games led to an increase in team bonuses, travel and hotel costs.

A decline in membership led to a £20,000 shortfall in budget.

Match receipts went up by £80,000 – some £60,000 ahead of budget – but that figure was eroded by player bonuses and added travel costs.

Health and Safety issues at Canterbury and Beckenham led to unbudgeted maintenance costs approaching £50,000 and, marketing income fell to £465,000 (£100,000 under budget) including a significant shortfall in profits from the club's retail outlets.

Players' salaries of £1.49m exceeded the budget by £130,000 while coaching costs increasing by £12,000.

The club responded to the recession by restructuring its management and marketing departments with the overall loss of seven jobs. The club's bank borrowing has also been restructured.

Club chairman, George M Kennedy, said: "The results are extremely disappointing. However, I promised we would examine our budget for this year more accurately to reflect our business needs. That budget has been agreed by committee and should result in an outcome closer to break even."

Kent members will discuss the figures at the club's AGM at the St Lawrence Ground on March 16.

Time capsule clue set in stone at cathedral

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

A TREASURE hunt leading to a time capsule buried deep within a field in Herne has been planted into the very pinnacle of Canterbury Cathedral.

And it is hoped it will not be uncovered for another 500 years.

The mystery for future historians to puzzle over is being built into a pinnacle of Canterbury Cathedral by Chestfield Rotary Club.

Following a donation of £750 to the Save Canterbury Cathedral Appeal, the rotarians were invited to install a time capsule 40 metres above the ground in a pinnacle which was repaired on Friday.

But the club decided they needed more room than was available behind the stone work so they decided to create a historical treasure hunt instead.

A glass paperweight has been placed behind the stonework, and on it are engraved co-ordinates to a farmer's field in Herne where the time capsule will be buried.

It is estimated the pinnacle will be due for repair again in about 500 years time, at which point, club members hope, future stonemasons will uncover the cut-glass clue.

A protective metal wall in front of the paperweight will ensure masons working 500 years from now won't accidentally smash it.

The contents of the time capsule the co-ordinates will lead to have yet to be decided, but Rotary Club members are adamant that they will do all they can to make sure the historic artefacts are preserved.

PUZZLE: Rotary Club president Andrew Brealy with the glass engraved plaque now set into the stonemasonry at the cathedral

Club member Hilary Brian said: "We have a new member who has been researching this and we've found that if you are going to do something like this, you have to do it properly."

"You can't just write on paper; ink from biros is slightly acidic and over time will eat away the paper. And tins will just rust away."

"If we want it to be found in 500 years, you need to pump out the air and fill it with nitrogen to preserve it, in the same way as display cases in museums."

The club has been quoted £500 for a suitable capsule.

Mrs Brian said: "We are still thinking about exactly what we are going to put in it, but a few members have written something about who they are, so people in the future can discover what different people were like now."

"Writing for people in 500 years time required a change in style. I tried to write mine as if they knew nothing about the world as it is now, which they probably won't."

Campaign for 40mph limit on road a success

ROAD campaigners have won their battle to have a 40mph speed limit imposed on the A257 near Canterbury.

Kent County Council's Joint Transportation Board recommended a speed limit on the A257 at a meeting last week.

When the policy is implemented, a 40mph speed limit will be imposed from the Casino garage in Bramling, all the way through several villages to Canterbury.

Ickham parish chairman, Geoff Preston, speaking to the board, said the whole community was united in wanting a safer road and they took their life in their hands whenever they entered at the Cherville Road junction.

Ickham parish council handed in a petition with more than 100 names which had been gathered in just four days prior to the meeting.

Councillor Brian Staley, who has campaigned for a speed limit for the last four years, led the delegation of villagers to discuss the proposals.

He said: "It would be a serious dereliction of duty if the Highways Authority waited for another fatality before acting."

"This road was as dangerous as any in east Kent."

Student figures set to soar amid economic slump

THE global financial crisis is having an unexpected knock-on effect – as universities in the district see applications for courses rocket.

And, perhaps not surprisingly, it is courses in economics which are seeing the biggest rises – with some leaping up by a number-crunching 61 per cent.

The University of Kent says it has seen a 19.2 per cent rise in applications for courses starting next September.

And Canterbury Christ Church University says its applications have risen by 11 per cent.

Nationally, there have been a record-breaking number of people wanting to begin a degree this September, with applications up 7.8 per cent.

Steven Holdcroft, head of information, recruitment and admissions at Kent, said: "This is a positive result for the university. There is only one other institution that has seen a larger than us increase and that's Portsmouth."

"It is quite interesting. There has been resurgence in some of the science areas, which previously were not doing very well."

"Maths applications are up 32 per cent, bio science up 29 per cent, fiscal science up 16 per cent and economics up 61 per cent."

"There has been a focus in the news and people are interested in how the economy works."

"People recognise the university has very good research and teaching facilities but also because market conditions have generated more interest in these areas."

The weak pound also seems to have boosted applications from overseas students with a 30 per cent increase reported.

Mr Holdcroft added: "Given the global impact of the financial crisis we may have expected them to decrease but it does not appear to be impacting on international students."

Safe return from Afghanistan for band of brothers

THREE brothers from Whitstable have all returned home this week after completing gruelling tours of duty on the frontline in Afghanistan.

Privates Lewis, Liam and Sam Arthey – aged 22, 20 and 18 respectively – are all part of the 2nd Battalion The Princess of Wales Royal Regiment.

And, more remarkably, they formed part of an incredible band of brothers in the regiment, comprising of seven brothers from three different families.

The Arthey boys have a history with the regiment, with father Trevor – who now lives in Herne Bay – previously serving as a warrant officer (2nd Class).

What's more, the trio will soon be joined on active duty by their step-brother Ryan, 17, who has just started his training – although he will be with a different platoon.

Find out more about air quality improvements

A PLAN showing how Canterbury council intends to tackle air quality issues in the Broad Street/Military Road area of the city has gone out to public consultation.

The area was declared an Air Quality Management Area in May 2006 because the air quality did not meet the standard set by the government due to the level of nitrogen dioxide produced by traffic.

The plan is at www.canterbury.gov.uk/airquality, or pop into a library or council office.

Enjoy a musical highlight with popular concert

CANTERBURY Cathedral will play host to one of the highlights of the University of Kent's cultural calendar next month.

The university will stage its popular Colyer-Fergusson concert at the cathedral on March 7 at 7.30pm.

Tickets range in price from £8 to £22 from Canterbury Bookings Box Office, 12/13 Sun Street, The Buttermarket, 01227 378188. Or the university on 01227 827335; email musictickets@kent.ac.uk.

Carry your card to claim a discount in local stores

HERNE Bay town centre chiefs are distributing 20,000 loyalty cards to residents in a bid to encourage shopping locally.

And this Friday the official launch of the long-discussed Bay Card takes place. Organised by Herne Bay Town Management and Canterbury council, the cards are being delivered to homes and made available to pick-up from shops and businesses.

Present your card at participating retailers to receive a discount or promotion.

Supervision order for continuing to claim cash

A HERNE Bay man who failed to inform the council of a change of circumstances affecting his benefit has pleaded guilty to fraud.

Stephen Keating, 21, of Pear Tree Road, appeared at Canterbury Magistrates Court last Wednesday. He was sentenced to a 100 hours community punishment order, given a 12-month supervision order and told to pay £100 in costs.

The court heard that Keating received an overpayment of benefit of £1,332.86.

flavour at times – which we hope everyone will enjoy."

Music is an integral part of worship at Canterbury Cathedral and there is great pride in the music performed at the services, a tradition which the cathedral has upheld for centuries.

The choral tradition at Canterbury evolved from the chanting of medieval monks during services at the cathedral.

This evolved into the cathedral's first boys' choir in the 13th century and the establishment of a separate choir school in 1540.

Today the choir consists of 12 lay clerks, men who are professional singers but also work locally, and 30 choristers, boys aged eight to 13 who go to school in Canterbury and live in the precincts of the cathedral.

The visit coincides with the 500th anniversary of the coronation of King Henry VIII, during whose reign the Canterbury Choir School was established. The coronation took place on April 21, 1509 – one of the choir's

As part of its £50 million fund-raising campaign, Canterbury Cathedral is working to raise £7m to ensure the survival of its great choral tradition.

Watch firefighters scale the heights of cathedral for emergency practice

RESIDENTS watched in amazement last week as fire crews flocked to the cathedral. But there was no need for panic as the emergency services staged a dramatic fire drill around the World Heritage Site.

More than 20 engines from across the county joined in, and fire crews got to test out super-strength hoses from Whitstable, designed to tackle floods – and draw huge amounts of water to help in extinguishing blazes.

A crew from our free broadband TV website

www.yourkenttv.co.uk were on hand as ladders were put up against the ancient building and men clambered to reach the tallest towers.

The drill was essential in case of a real fire. Not only is the building of huge historic and cultural value, but it also houses a priceless collection of books and artefacts which would need protecting from the ravages of a blaze.

BEAUTIFUL: The green burial site will be given over to wild flowers as a light, pleasant area to visit

Rest in peace in an eco-friendly field of flowers

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

YOU'VE heard of environmentally friendly living – and now your death can be kind to the world we live in too, as details were revealed of the first green burial site in the district.

The site, to open in the spring, will offer 800 graves in what Canterbury council says will be a quiet meadow with trees and shrubs dotted amongst swathes of wild flowers.

Green burial refers to burials which are as ecologically sustainable as possible. Coffins must be fully biodegradable, without fabric linings, metal or plastic fittings or treated wood, and no tributes are to left at the gravesides, especially not cellophane-wrapped flowers.

No grave markers are allowed at the site, not even trees, which council officers say must be kept well spaced to encourage the growth of wild flowers.

A council spokesman said: "It is not the intention to plant trees on graves or to add too many trees to the area."

"Trees grown too close together are not sustainable; the area will become dark due to the canopies, and therefore grass and wildflowers will not grow. It is intended this will be a light, sunny area, that's pleasant to visit."

Environmentally sustainable measures even extend to the way bodies are prepared for burial, and green embalming fluid must be used, as well as a shroud made only of natural materials such as linen or wool.

Even the straps used by the funeral directors to lower the coffin must be biodegradable.

And mourners and visitors will be encouraged to reach the new cemetery by public transport. The exact location of the site has not yet been revealed.

Bad weather last summer saw the scheme delayed as council contractors could not do the necessary landscaping and planting.

But now the site is almost ready to open, with a suitable ceremony to mark the occasion planned later this year.

Green burial is growing in popularity in Britain, with the first dedicated site opening just 16 years ago in Scotland.

Now there are more than 200 sites across Britain, with many more green plots set aside in conventional cemeteries.

Until now, people living in the Canterbury district wanting a green burial would have had to use a limited number of designated plots in either Canterbury or Whitstable cemeteries.

Cremated remains can be scattered at the site, but will only be interred in an existing family grave.

yourcanterbury NEWS IN BRIEF

Stars out for Red Nose fun

A HOST of faces from CBBC will become park keepers for a day in a special Comic Relief version of hit children's TV show Roar.

Filmed at both Howletts in Bekesbourne and its sister park Port Lympne, series four began its run on BBC Two on Monday, for 25 one-hour long episodes.

And on March 13 there will be a special Red Nose Day version of the show. In addition to regular hosts Rani Price and Matt Skilton Tracey Beaker star Dani Harmer and wacky TV presenter, Ross Lee, became zoo keepers.

The regular series of Roar gives a rare insight into some of the world's most unique and endangered animals. In an action-packed new series the crew travel to the Gabon to follow three hand-reared baby gorillas that were raised at Howletts and were released into the wild last summer.

This series witnesses the birth of a baby bongo and a litter of red river hog piglets.

Bar application rejected

PLANS to open a three-storey lounge bar trading until 3am in St Margaret's Street have been rejected by Canterbury council.

The street is already the subject of a saturation order which imposes stringent licensing rules on opening new premises.

Canterbury businessman Stephen Cross and a team of hospitality experts attempted to convince members of the licensing team that The Rooms would cause minimal impact to residents. But members failed to be convinced the 200-capacity venue would not have a detrimental impact on the busy area.

Aspinall allegations on TV

CHANNEL 4 claimed to have lifted the lid on John Aspinall on Monday in a special programme as part of its Tofts and Crims series.

The Real Casino Royale looked at the man behind two of Kent's best known tourist attractions, and who lived in a large house within the grounds of his Howletts park in Bekesbourne.

The show claims the man who made his fortune through gambling allegedly teamed up with shady characters to further line his pockets – claims which are angrily denied by his family.

Mr Aspinall died in 2000.

DESIGN: Neil Bottle's work will go on show in London

Artist's latest work is cut from Middle Eastern cloth

A TOP London gallery is hosting an exhibition of work by celebrated Canterbury textile artist Neil Bottle.

Mr Bottle, a senior lecturer at the University for the Creative Arts in Canterbury, has put together a new exhibition of printed textiles inspired by the landscapes of the Middle East.

It will be opening at the Contemporary Applied Arts venue in London, next month.

The pieces in the collection, which range from large wall hangings to wearable items such as scarves, were all produced by Mr Bottle, who was inspired by a seconndment at the University of Sharjah, in the United Arab Emirates.

He said: "I was offered the opportunity to work in the Middle East to help set up a new fashion textiles design programme and found that the intensity of light and the plethora of rich colours had an enormous impact on my own work."

The collection is printed on silk and features rich shades of claret, rust, aqua and deep blue. His exhibition, entitled the Focus Exhibition Twenty Years In The Making, will run at Contemporary Applied Arts in Percy Street, London from March 20 to May 2.

QUESTION & ANSWER

MIRANDA HAYES

Q & A

Reporter Marijke Cox talks to Miranda Hayes, deputy director of Action With Communities in Rural Kent, about the organisation and what it can provide those living in the county and her out of work commitments

Q How did you get involved with Action with Communities in Rural Kent?

A Pure fluke. Before I joined I was practice manager for a veterinary surgeon. I was looking for a job for my sister who had recently moved down from London, I saw an advert for a deputy director and thought that it looked really interesting, so I applied and had an interview. I got a parking ticket whilst I was in there, and I then got a phone call from the director that evening offering me the job.

Q What is the main aim of the organisation?

A Our aims are to ensure that rural communities have the facilities, tools and skills they need to retain their self sufficiency and sustainability. We do this through a number of ways, offering help and advice to local parish councils, particularly if they want to undertake a parish plan. We support and work with community halls, ensuring that the local shop is stocked and supported so it can survive. We work with housing associations and the local authority to provide housing for people that is affordable. We also offer practical help and funding advice for parish plans and community groups.

Q What does your role involve?

A My role is mainly office based, I administer three funding schemes. The EON Scheme in Medway, the ESF Community Grant Fund and the COMMA Fund. I also line-manage five members of staff and help them to achieve their individual project targets. I do all of the finance, including salaries and project funding returns. I organise the annual Village of the Year competition and I prepare the end of year audit. I generally oversee the office and its associated equipment.

Q Which areas of Kent do you think need the most community support and advice?

A Most people would answer east Kent as there is a perception that east Kent is more deprived than the west of the county. Whilst I understand the reasoning behind this, there are areas in west Kent which do need help and it does get a bit difficult when trying to fund individual projects which are trying to support those people who are deprived in west Kent.

Q Do you find your job rewarding?

A I most certainly do. Having a community undertake a parish plan and actually see some funding for the projects that the community has identified is fantastic. I also love the people I work with, they are so committed to helping communities to help themselves.

Q What is the hardest thing about it?

A Having to turn down a funding bid and not having enough hours in the day.

Q What hopes do you have for the year ahead for Action with Communities in Rural Kent?

A Action with Communities has been in existence since 1923. I hope that the organisation will go from strength to strength and that we will continue to find new ways to support small local communities.

Q What do you get up to outside of work?

A I am married with four children, two of whom have left home. The youngest are ten and eight and they take up a lot of our time, we organise lifts to football, horse-riding, Stagecoach, cricket and piano lessons.

We also currently have three girls that we have previously looked after and have now adopted as our own children, and although they are now 23, 21 and 20, we can't get them to leave for love nor money! We are also registered foster carers and currently have two boys from Afghanistan living with us. Ian and I also support a couple of young parents. I have a large family and I enjoy spending time with my brothers and sisters. I go to the gym and swim three times a week. I love to cook and when I get home at night you can find me for the next two hours in the kitchen preparing about four different meals, some of which uses Halal meat. I don't get to watch much telly, so I indulge my love of books and am normally found at about 10pm either in the bath or curled up in bed with a book.

Plight of newsreader's wife highlights a severe shortage

Dementia care boosted but now we need more

■ BY JENNA PUDELEK

PEOPLE who care for loved ones with dementia are to benefit from a further eight specialist nurses this year.

But with an estimated 22,000 people across the county suffering from the condition, there still will not be enough, a spokeswoman from the For Dementia charity said.

The charity provides Admiral Nurses, who are trained to help the carers of people with dementia.

Their specialised work made headlines last week after former newsreader John Suchet spoke out about his wife, Bonnie, who has dementia, and the invaluable support he gets from his Admiral Nurse, Ian.

In Kent, there are just five of these nurses working with families and carers of people with a form of the debilitating condition.

Jon Parsons, associate director for older people's mental health in east Kent for the Kent and Medway Social Care NHS Partnership Trust, said the trust was now recruiting an additional eight of the nurses to work across the county.

Nationally there are only 60 Admiral Nurses working, compared to the thousands required to care for those in need, despite the county faring better than many places.

For Dementia's Jacqui Wharrad said: "We have been very successful in getting funding in Kent and Medway."

"Kent is very lucky, but the numbers are huge. There are still not enough. The Government's national dementia strategy [published this month] says there should be a dementia advisor for every person. That is not going to happen overnight.

SUCHET: TV star's moving account of life with his wife

"It is good in Kent. We are already doing what the Government wants us to do, but we want more.

"If you are going to provide quality support for all the people with this disease, we are going to need more and more nurses and resources."

In the UK there are 700,000 people with dementia, which is an umbrella term and covers Alzheimer's disease, vascular dementia and rarer forms. This figure is expected to increase to 1.7million by 2050.

Mr Suchet spoke about his nurse this week, saying: "When I see him I pour my heart out to him."

"He encourages, advises, and most important of all, keeps telling me not to feel guilty. Guilt, the natural condition of the carer, for wanting to run away, wanting to have fun, wanting to form relationships, wanting to do this and that, and resenting the fact that you can't."

Author Terry Pratchett has also spoken publicly about dementia after he was diagnosed in 2007 with a rare form of Alzheimer's, which he famously described as an "embuggerance".

Ms Wharrad said putting dementia into the spotlight was helpful: "John Suchet has really done a lot of good for people in his position."

She added: "Obviously the number of nurses is no where near the number of people with dementia. There is a big mismatch between what is needed and what is out there."

The trust's Mr Parsons said the nurses provided a "fantastic service" for the carers and were helping the trust meet the directives in the Government's recent dementia strategy.

DEATH AND TAXES: But who pays in the end?

Paupers' funerals on increase with fewer coffin up

TAXPAYERS throughout Kent have spent more than £370,000 on other people's funerals in the last five years.

Councils have an obligation to pay for a service when a person dies outside of hospital and there are no friends or family available or willing to pick up the tab.

Between 2003/04 and 2007/08 there were about 400 "paupers' funerals" in Kent. The average cost is £944, which equates to a total of about £377,600 in this country.

Our sister paper Kent on Sunday obtained the figures from 12 of 15 local authorities in Kent. The remaining three – Ashford, Dartford and Thanet – were unable to respond in time.

Paul Edwards, bereavement and registration services manager at Medway council, explained the paupers' funeral process.

He said: "It's usually for bodies washed up in the river or poor old people living alone. It's a crude way to put it, but the purpose of our obligation under the Public Health Act is so bodies aren't left in the streets."

There have already been 12 services in Medway during 2008/09 compared with just two in 2007/08. Mr Edwards said: "There has been a sudden increase, which may be because of the economic climate."

A survey by the LGA showed that 61 per cent of environmental health officers questioned felt the national rise in paupers' funerals was because family and friends were unwilling to meet the cost, while 50 per cent put it down to relatives being unable to pay.

Music to young ears

Organisation giving children the chance to learn and play

■ BY ANNA WHITE

A COUNTYWIDE music organisation is undergoing a transformation to grab the attention of more budding musicians in Kent.

Despite having taught about 6,000 youngsters and adults various musical instruments and vocal lessons during the last 60 years since it was formed, many of our readers will probably not have heard of Kent Music.

But a new management team at the organisation's headquarters in Hastings Road, Maidstone, led by recently-appointed chief executive Peter Bolton, is hoping to change this.

Mr Bolton said: "It is our mission to offer young people the chance to play what they are listening to. We want to be help if someone comes to us and wants to form a rock band, or play electric guitar."

"Kent Music has been running for 60 years and now is the time for a change, to bring it up-to-date and find out what Kent wants and needs."

The independent organisation, which is funded by a grant from Kent County Council and student fees, has already started to connect with a wider audience by hosting large-scale events at local schools.

Staff at the Maidstone site recently hosted a Sound Factory with more than 90 students from Maidstone Girls Grammar School.

The pupils were allowed to try out musical instruments they hadn't played before and come together at the end to put on a show.

Project development manager Laura Callaghan said: "Sound Factory gives pupils who have never played an instrument before a chance to try it without the pressure and just have fun."

"Our day with MGGS was very successful, and from our feedback forms about 75 per cent of the SOUND ENVIRONMENT: Young musicians play under the guidance of a Kent Music teacher at a Sound Factory day group rated the day as either good or excellent."

Other initiatives include county music groups, a summer school being held at Benenden School and the forthcoming Music Plus countywide programme, which is Kent Music's answer to the Government-funded youth scheme Wider Opportunities.

The aim of this programme is to get 5,000 primary school children in years three to six to receive a year's free music tuition by 2011.

Brothers Matthew and Paul Deacon, from Mangravet in Maidstone, have been learning at Kent Music from a young age and take weekly violin lessons with teacher Katherine Tindall.

Matthew, 12, said: "I enjoy the fun of playing, and our teacher Katherine is really good and funny."

Paul, ten, added: "I enjoy playing the violin. I haven't been playing as long as my brother but I am really good, better than him I reckon."

Kent Music offers lessons in a range of instruments and vocally in schools, and at their sites on a one-to-one basis or in groups.

Rail firm slammed over plans to axe services to London

RAIL company Southeastern has come under fire after it emerged services into London from Kent would be reduced when its flagship high-speed line goes live.

MPs and passenger groups are angry that commuters are facing soaring ticket prices, higher than anywhere in the country, to pay for a service that only 15 per cent of passengers will be able to use.

From December when the Channel Tunnel Rail Link (CTRL) High Speed 1 comes into service, journey times from Ashford International to London St Pancras will be slashed by 37 minutes.

But Roger Gale, the Tory MP for Thanet North, said in east Kent the journey to London will take longer than it did by steam train in 1936 – and at a premium fare.

This week also saw the publication of a major new study by the rail watchdog Passenger Focus, which found British commuters, especially in London and the South East, were paying more on rail fares than anywhere else in Europe.

Problems

Mr Gale has written to the transport minister Lord Adonis about problems facing constituents and rail passengers across Kent.

He said the fast trains, which will speed to London at 120mph according to Southeastern, will travel at less than 60mph between London and Margate and less than 70mph between London and Canterbury.

The seven trains currently stopping each morning at Margate, Birchington and Herne Bay to Victoria will be cut to two from December and services will also be reduced to Cannon Street and London Bridge.

A Southeastern spokesman said: "In some of the smaller towns they do get fewer services but this is counter-balanced against the increase in services elsewhere."

"It is only a high-speed service from Ashford to London St Pancras, from destinations on the Kent coast trains operate on the existing track."

"We have never pretended it is going to be an option for everybody."

BREAK TIME

Young college chefs can stand the heats

CANTERBURY College will host the regional final of the Kent and East Sussex Rotary Young Chef Competition 2009 after the heats in Sussex.

Chef and ex-Canterbury College student Damon Dalmedo, from The Barn in Rainham, was among the judges putting the ten competitors through their paces.

Students had two hours to cook a three-course meal, designed from their own menu and based on a budget of just £12.

The judges had 11 categories to mark, including healthy choices, planning and hygiene, presentation and taste. The results were extremely close, with Tom Childs, 16, from Broadstairs taking first place, followed by Lewis Jackson, 16, from the Isle of Sheppey.

Mr Dalmedo said: "Their organisation was so good, with excellent attention to detail, and they were very confident."

This is the second year Rotary Clubs across the UK have sponsored young chefs to take up the culinary challenge. Nigel Stratton of Tonbridge Rotary Club, who organised this part of the competition, was very impressed by "how good it all looked, and the very high standard", remarking that he would love to have their culinary skills.

The finalists will now go on to compete in the regional finals, to be held at Canterbury College on March 7.

Promising future beckons with university Gateway

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

THE police, nurses and teachers of the future got their first taste of the professions at Canterbury Christ Church University this month.

Pupils from Canterbury High School, Chaucer Technology School and St Anselm's Catholic School are taking part in the university's Gateway programme which aims to encourage more young people to go to university and increase the chances of them finding their dream job.

Dr Kathy Gouch, the university's academic lead for the project, said: "This programme is a brilliant way of providing a taste of university life to young people who may not otherwise consider themselves eligible for higher education. As well as presenting them a sense of what a university environment could offer and some of the resources available, it also gives an insight into possible future careers and an idea of what training providers have to offer."

Students who took part in the policing session learned about the principles of the law in England and Wales as well as classification of offences, hearsay evidence, the power of arrest, human rights and the right to free legal advice.

Pupils working with the university's health and social care team focused on life support, adult nursing, speech therapy, child health and public health. And sixth formers interested in a teaching career looked at how digital media can be utilised in the classroom for learning, taking photographs around campus and looking at how their images could be used as a teaching resource.

The scheme also includes a mentoring programme, where specially selected Canterbury Christ Church University students work with their respective groups to talk about future careers and training. At the end of the project, the mentors, known as guidance students, will work with their groups to help them take their interest further. The mentors will talk about how to pursue what they have learned and explain the training they will need to secure a career in their chosen profession. They will particularly focus on whether the young people will consider higher education as an option or a future career in one of the public service professions.

Each week we get a mystery writer to air their views on living in and around Canterbury...

Who needs birds when we can fly away into the sun?

SO we know Boris Johnson's solution to the country's air traffic woes is to build an island in the middle of the Thames Estuary. Well, he already has one. It's called Sheppey.

There's no need to go to all the trouble of reclaiming hundreds of acres of land from the sea bed using giant floating excavators and massive barges full of ballast and concrete. Why not flatten Sheppey?

No one is going to miss the architectural splendours of Leysdown. There are already enough caravans there to house all the workers.

Sheppey has a long history linked to aviation. Was it not the site of some of the first ever experimental flights in the country? What could be a more fitting place on which to build Britain's aviation future of a gleaming space-age terminal than the place it all began?

OK, so you might lose a few curlews and oystercatchers and upset some birdwatchers, but they are the sort of people who like spending miserable holidays in the UK. What about the rest of us, who need to get abroad and get some rays on to our vitamin D deficient bodies?

As we saw when that plane ditched in the Hudson, birds and planes don't mix. Anyone would think they invented flying instead of just evolving into it by accident. They're only dumb lizards that sprouted wings after millions of years of throwing themselves at the ground until they missed.

County council leader Paul Carter says we already have a top class international airport at Manston. He may be right; many say it could be the new Stansted or Luton.

My brother is all for it, despite living under the flight path. I keep telling him he won't like it once the 747s start flying over his garden but I think he's a bit of a plane spotter at heart and they're worse than the birdwatchers.

There is also Lydd Airport or Ashford International as it likes to call itself, which is lobbying for massive expansion. By the way, calling something 'international' doesn't suddenly make it something to rival JFK or Heathrow. Any port is international. Whitstable harbour is 'international' if you head out in the right direction.

So we already have three sites in Kent for massive airports. I say let's have more. We could have the one that was going to be built at Cliffe as well. Let's build another in the sea just for the hell of it.

Of course we could just stop flying everywhere rather than wipe-out more of the countryside or ruin the sea. Fish have rights too don't they? What about all those flat fish who will be flattened in the name of progress: the noble Dab, the majestic Flounder, the Dover Sole. Don't these fine creatures deserve our protection as well as the kittiwake or the dormouse?

MAKE IT HAPPEN
CHOOSE FAIRTRADE

WIN a Fairtrade hamper of goodies

TWO billion people – a third of humanity – still survive on less than £1.50 a day.

Unfair trade rules keep them in poverty, but they face the global challenges of food shortages and climate change too. Fairtrade is a people's movement for change that aims to tip the balance of trade in favour of poor producers. Fairtrade Fortnight is a great opportunity for our producer partners to see first-hand how people are spreading the word about Fairtrade in the UK. It's also a great opportunity for you to meet them and hear how Fairtrade is changing lives in their communities.

Dover Fairtrade Steering Group are welcoming a cotton producer from Cameroon in Dover at an event during Fairtrade Fortnight to share their experiences of Fairtrade. This group has been campaigning since 2006 to earn Dover the title of Fairtrade Town*, which it has successfully achieved this week.

We all need Fairtrade more than ever and we all have the power to create positive change for people and the planet.

Make it happen. Choose Fairtrade.

Kosmedia Publishing has two Fairtrade hampers worth £150 up for grabs.

To win a hamper full of Fairtrade goodies simply answer the question below and send your entry on a postcard along with your e-mail address (if applicable), name, address, and daytime telephone number to La Redoute, KOS Media, Apple Barn, Smeeth, Ashford, Kent, TN25 6SR.

Question: Name one country which produces Fairtrade cotton?

No purchase necessary. Closing date is March 10, 2009.

TALK TIME

LOUISE HUDSON

Louise Hudson, administrator for Red List Live, the new festival coming to Port Lympne Wild Animal Park, discusses plans for the music extravaganza

What is Red List Live?

Red List Live is more than just a music festival, it's a whole ethos. We want to raise money and awareness for the world's most endangered animals by creating massive events that the public can share in and enjoy. Our first festival is taking place June 19-21 and will play host to big name bands, DJs and comedians, alongside local unsigned bands, theatre, graffiti art, skating and much more. Our ultimate aim is to raise £1million over the next five years for The Aspinall Foundation, the animal charity we support.

What do you do?

I primarily support the festival director, but I also assist the rest of the team; this means my job is full of variety – on a normal day I could be doing anything from setting up meetings to listening to cool bands, to planning a photo shoot with the gorillas! It can be hectic as we're always working to deadlines, but it's really exciting to be part of such a great project and create the kind of event my friends would enjoy.

What's it like to be part of the Red List Live team?

It's a lot of hard work but also a lot of fun. Our team is made up of ten really strong individuals who each bring different areas of expertise to the group. We've been really busy since October making preparations for the festival, and there's a great atmosphere in the little Portocabin we call home.

• Tickets are available from www.redlistlive.com at the earlybird rate of £99 for the weekend.

Council should come clean with costs

With Canterbury council making massive increases in council tax, isn't there a simpler alternative?

Seek more funding from central Government or Kent County Council (KCC) – or sack underperforming senior staff.

To suggest that the public should pay for increases simply to maintain existing council services is absurdly one-sided.

I am standing as Independent Green MP for South Thanet and will be investigating the possibilities of a merger of the failed councils at Thanet and Dover with Canterbury to create an East Kent Council with reduced headcount, costs and improved services. And direct funding from KCC and its £2.2bn budget.

The age of big government and an unaccountable one is over.

Will Colin Carmichael also now produce under Freedom of Information and prominently publish on the Canterbury council website home page a list of departments, headcount and salaries to evaluate the value of the council and its services we pay for?

I've written to the Department of Communities and Local Government calling for such information to be compulsory for better governance.

With 900 staff in Canterbury and 500 staff in Thanet, just 15 miles away, we have unnecessary bureaucracy and failure.

A new perspective on the tax hikes

Surely the main thing is that Kent County Council's slice of the council tax is not going to be that significant rather than purely the Canterbury piece of the pie?

The increase proposed for those of us who live in the district, as a result of the city's price hike, will be minimal. Had the police and KCC decided to up it so much then the impact would have been very much greater.

I believe the city council is right to push the rise to the limit to try and compensate for the economic situation with regard interest payments lost on investments etc.

We pay a handful of pounds and get a high level of service. I know it's very easy to knock the city council and what it does, but I think we should bear in mind there are many, many local councils close to our district where the standard just is nowhere near what we have come to expect and, indeed, demand.

I'm not just supporting the council either: I don't agree with the politics of the ruling party at all, but I do think we need to get things in perspective and not just knee-jerk react to the prospect of the inevitable annual increase in our council tax bill.

H Turner

Five per cent rise can't be justified

How can the city council justify an increase of nearly five per cent in this current economic climate?

How can they justify lifting it and blaming poorly judged investments in Icelandic banks?

While there must be some shortfalls somewhere given the interest rates, surely there are savings the council must be making elsewhere? I think it is disgraceful.

Cold impact of city street performance

I was walking through the city centre on Valentine's Day and witnessed the 'frozen in time' piece of performing art you reported on last week.

It was certainly quite entertaining and, initially at least, intriguing. However, I cannot help but think this sort of performance has long since lost its clout and ability to truly impact on our lives.

You only have to turn the TV on for ten minutes these days to see that T-Mobile advert with everyone dancing at Liverpool St Station in London to see how this sort of thing has gone from occasional – and with impact – to frequent and therefore, without impact.

I applaud the efforts of the Kent Youth Theatre, and admit it lightened up the city centre – but surely this sort of thing is on its last legs now?

Youth Theatre made shopping fascinating

Please send my congratulations to the Kent Youth Theatre for their 'strike a pose' performance in the city centre last Saturday.

I was shopping there with my daughter and her young family and we were all transfixed by the sight of all of these people apparently frozen in time. It worked extremely well and my grandchildren found it completely fascinating.

How so many of them managed to keep a straight face while shoppers looked on bemused and confused I have no idea!

No surprise dogs gnawed through door

What a terribly sad story it was about the escaped dogs from Howletts. But surely the idea of dogs – wild or domestic – gnawing through wooden doors is hardly going to surprise most people is it?

I invite anyone to look at the state of my kitchen door to see just how much damage a dog with an appetite for destruction can cause. And he gets regular walks and a big garden to play in!

Name and address withheld
Canterbury

Dhole lot of reasons were unsatisfactory

Howletts' animal director Neil Spooner's explanation of why dholes escaped from their enclosure and then why some were shot dead rather than successfully recaptured was totally unsatisfactory.

He seems surprised that a pack of large wild dogs managed to chew through a door made of wood in a bid for freedom.

Even though dholes are generally burrowing animals it would be patently obvious to most people that for the purposes of security, a dog's powerful jaws and a wooden gate were highly incompatible.

Then for Neil Spooner to let police marksmen kill these beautiful canines rather than to sedate them with tranquilliser darts because, according to him, "there were too many of them" was inexcusable.

I can't imagine that if the late John Aspinall were alive today that a farcical situation like this would have ever been allowed to happen.

Reputation for hot stuff on the plate

■ Shapla Tandoori

THIS restaurant in Whitstable sets itself apart from the many Indian restaurants in the area by the quality of its food and service.

It has been established in the area for some time and enhanced its reputation through word of mouth – satisfied customers have been quick to pass on the name and recommend dishes they have particularly enjoyed.

The restaurant is also popular with the many visitors who arrive in the town “down from London” especially during the summer months.

Owner Shahin Rahman is currently taking bookings for Mothers’ Day on March 22.

The restaurant has been in business for 15 years and is open from Sunday to Thursday from noon until 2.30pm and from 6pm until 11.30pm. On Friday and Saturday opening hours are noon until 2.30pm and 6pm until midnight.

A Sunday family buffet is an extremely popular attraction and outside catering is offered for special events.

One of the most popular dishes on the menu is the tandoori mixed grill, which includes chicken tikka, sik kebab, lamb tikka and tandoori chicken.

The chef has been working at the premises for 11 years and staff pride themselves on their expertise and knowledge of Indian food.

They are always willing to advise diners on particular combinations of dishes and recommend to them what they should try if they are looking for a particular dish or new culinary experience.

Feedback is carefully monitored by Mr Rahman and his staff – and there is even a book for customers to write their comments in.

Why mums will love the Yantze

■ Yantze

THIS eatery opened its doors in Whitstable in 2004 and is staffed by experts in the preparation and presentation of Chinese food.

Kristine Man is at the centre of operations and her mother Fortai is head chef, drawing on all of her 30 year experience in the culinary trade to offer the very best for diners.

Her family has a long history when it comes to excellent cooking.

Kristine herself worked in her mother's restaurant at the age of 15 and her grandmother has a highly successful restaurant in Muswell Hill.

Five other family members have eating places in Kent and London and all have fine reputations too.

Yantze is currently taking bookings for Mothers' Day, which falls on March 22, as well as April 3 when a Blues Brothers-style band will be playing. A charity event to raise funds for the RSPCA is also being planned.

The restaurant offers an eat-as-much-as-you-like buffet on lunchtimes on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, while evening opening hours are from 5.30pm until 11.30pm from Tuesdays to Sundays.

Current best-selling dishes include crispy duck as well as mussels in black bean sauce and squid with spicy salt.

Comic and panto star Dave Lee is a keen fan of the restaurant, which has knowledgeable and friendly staff who all know their way around the menu and can advise customers as to the best combination of dishes.

Diners come from across the county and further as Yantze cements its reputation as one of the best places to eat around.

POWER STRUGGLE: Richard E Grant plays the role of a brutish, arrogant lawyer as God of Carnage passes through the county on tour

Carnage and I

Richard E Grant is acting like a child

GOD OF CARNAGE

Monday to Saturday, March 2-7
The Marlowe Theatre, Canterbury

GREAT actor Richard E Grant will be treading The Marlowe's boards next week in God of Carnage.

Yasmina Reza's play looks at what happens when the social niceties of adulthood can no longer cover up underlying grievances and power struggles.

When two boys fight at school, their parents meet to discuss the matter in a civilised fashion. As the evening progresses, the four adults begin to behave more and more childishly until the meeting descends into chaos.

God of Carnage opened in the West End last year with a star cast that included Ralph Fiennes and Ken Stott. It was greeted with critical acclaim, one critic describing it as "a fantastic Abigail's Party for the urban, professional classes".

Grant plays self-centred lawyer Alain, whose son, 11-year-old Ferdinand, has knocked out his friend Bruno's teeth with a stick. Immoral and arrogant, he tries to use aggression to deal with Bruno's aggrieved parents.

Best known for his breakthrough role in cult 1987 film Withnail And I, Grant has appeared in more than 60 films. His unusual childhood inspired Wah-Wah, a film that he made over five difficult years.

Born in Mbabane, Swaziland, Richard Esterhuysen was the son of the last British minister of education and a German/South African ballet teacher. As a child he witnessed his mother's infidelity, which led to his parents' divorce, and had an alarming moment at 15 when a gun was pointed at his head by his alcoholic father.

The desire to act began when he was a child and he went on to study drama at university in Cape Town, where he co-founded the multi-racial Troupe Theatre Company.

His father died from lung cancer at the age of 51, too early to see Grant's career really take off. Grant left Swaziland the year after his father's death and worked as a waiter in Covent Garden before landing roles in the theatre. In 1983 he met dialect coach Joan Washington, who would later become his wife.

Although Withnail And I would be Grant's big break, it marked an unhappy time in his life. The couple's first child, a daughter, was born prematurely and died during the first days of filming, but they went on to have another daughter, Olivia.

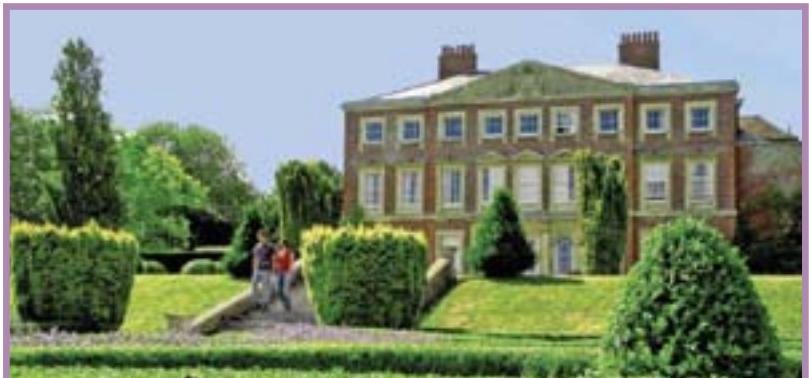

A master at playing eccentric, furious and memorable characters, Grant has worked with some of the world's greatest directors and continues to delight audiences on both screen and stage.

Tickets are £12.50 to £24.50. Book at www.marlowetheatre.com, or phone the box office on 01227 787787.

GOODNESTONE PARK GARDENS

Sunday, March 1, 8, 15, 22
Goodnestone Park Gardens,
near Wingham

SPRING into the new season and enjoy the wonderful display of bulbs at Goodnestone Park Gardens.

The haven will welcome visitors on Sundays during March before opening for its main season on March 24.

The house was built in 1704 by the Fitzwalter family, who have created one of England's most appealing country gardens over the centuries.

During the last 40 years the current Lady Fitzwalter has restored and expanded it, giving visitors the chance to absorb the beauty and history of the grounds.

The new gravel garden allows glimpses of 18th century parkland, while there are wonderful views of the church tower through the Walled Garden. Novelist Jane Austen was a frequent visitor to Goodnestone and, after one trip in 1796, she wrote romantic classic Pride And Prejudice.

The gardens will be open from noon to 4pm. Tickets cost £5 for adults, £4.50/£3/£1 for concessions and £1 for children.

For more information visit www.goodnestoneparkgardens.co.uk or call 01304 840107.

to the outbreak of the Second World War, thousands of children from Austria, Poland, Germany and Czechoslovakia were sent to Britain without their parents, to escape the Nazi regime. Most of them were Jewish and many never saw their families again.

The End of Everything Ever tells the story of Agata, a six-year-old girl put on a train by her father. As she absent-mindedly chews the paper tag around her neck, she obliterates her name and address and with it, any chance of getting home.

The show, which is suitable for ages 14 and above, starts at 7.45pm. Tickets cost £13/£11. To book call 01227 769075 or see www.gulbenkiantheatre.co.uk.

THE END OF EVERYTHING EVER

Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury

THE pre-war experiences of a generation are explored in The End of Everything Ever.

As part of the Gulbenkian's World Fest, New International Encounter will be staging their critically acclaimed play drawing on true stories of the Kindertransport. ## THE RIDDLE OF THE SANDS

Tuesday and Wednesday March 3-4
Bossington Village Hall & Herne Bay Little Theatre

A THRILLING tale of suspense and spying is brought to small venues across the county by Chalkfoot Theatre Arts.

The Riddle of the Sands is a new adaptation of Erskine Childers' Edwardian book, considered to be the forerunner of the modern spy novel. With two actors playing a variety of characters, the play offers suspense, adventure and tongue-in-cheek humour.

Set just before the outbreak of the First World War, the show sees two young men set out on a yachting expedition that turns into a dangerous spying mission.

Despite losing major funding last year, Chalkfoot received a great deal of support from rural communities and secured a life-line grant from Kent County Council. This means they can carry on bringing great theatre to small venues around Kent.

The performance starts at 7.30pm. Tickets cost £8/£7. Refreshments and a licensed bar will be available. Riddle of the Sands will visit the Memorial Hall in Woodchurch on March 18. To find out more about Chalkfoot visit www.chalkfoot.org.uk.

Clint's directing his life so he keeps on learning

■ BY SHEREEN LOW

HE'S had many box office successes during his long and esteemed career, yet Clint Eastwood must be chuffed that his latest offering, Gran Torino, is his highest grossing film ever.

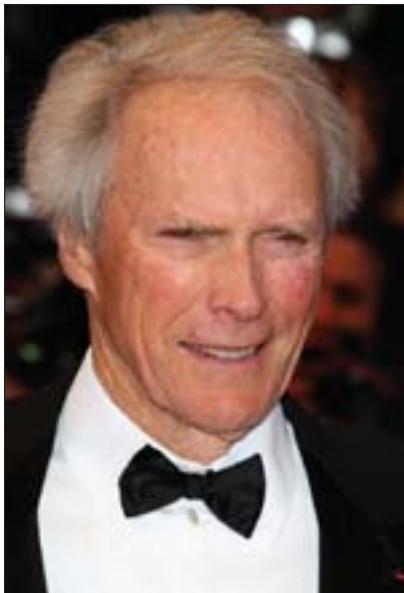

The gritty drama, which he stars in, directed and produced, cruised to the top of the North American box office in its opening weekend and remains in the Top 10, having taken in over US $120million.

Not bad, considering the living legend wasn't looking to act again.

"I hadn't planned on doing much more acting, really. I said a few years ago, 'I don't think I'll act any more, I'll stay behind the camera,'" he admits. "And then Million Dollar Baby came along and I liked that role, so I said, 'I think I'll do this because I'm right for it', and then I did Gran Torino. It had a role that was my age, and the character seemed like it was tailored for me, even though it wasn't."

"The message from the story was great – it shows you're never too old to learn. And that's why I'm still working at 78, because I like learning something new all the time, and every time you do a project, you learn new things. That makes it fun. When it's not fun, you won't see me doing it any more."

Clint has had one of the most illustrious careers to date. The man who carved out a niche for playing tough guys and cowboys in the 60s has made the transition into a five-time Oscar-winning filmmaker, directing movies like Changeling, Million Dollar Baby and Mystic River, and winning over a new generation of audiences at the same time.

LAST ROLE? "It might be," says Clint Eastwood, 78, star of Gran Torino which has been a box office hit in the US

"I wanted to be a director because I felt one day I wouldn't want to be an actor any more, and so I started working towards that. I figured people will look up on screen one day, and say, 'enough of that,'" he said.

"You just do different things. During the 60s, I knew I had to do films outside the Western genre, as much as I love them. I figured if I kept doing those, I'd eventually run out of steam so I just kept expanding my career. And in 1970, I started directing."

VIEW THIS PREVIEW

yourkenttv.co.uk

In Gran Torino, Clint plays Walt Kowalski, a grumpy Korean War veteran who's forced to come to terms with his prejudices.

"Walt's very disturbed about the way his world has gone. He was raised in a neighbourhood that was populated with automobile people like him, probably a high percentage of Polish Americans, like him. So when he sees his neighbourhood changing, it discourages him."

There are rumours Gran Torino could be the last film before the father-of-seven (and grandfather-of-two) retires from the acting spotlight.

"I've been saying that for years," Clint says. "You never know. You never say never. It might be, I don't know. I don't know how many, if any, great roles they have for guys my age – I could play butlers, I suppose."

Bouldered over by the Lake District

■ BY LUCY CORRY

WHEN they promised me an alternative view of the Lake District, this wasn't what I had in mind.

My husband is at the wheel of a bright orange four-wheel-drive vehicle which is perched perilously on a rock formation high above Coniston. The oversized Tonka toy is on a 45-degree lean and my fellow backseat passenger is beginning to whimper.

Her boyfriend, in the front seat, clicks the walkie-talkie on and summons help. "Errr, Nick," he says nervously, "we might need a bit of advice on this one."

Anyone who thinks the Lake District is all about wandering lonely as a cloud or trying to spot Peter Rabbit hasn't met Nick Fieldhouse.

The softly-spoken 30-something may look like he's suited to a scholarly life, but he turns into a thrill-seeking maniac at the wheel of a 4x4. Fieldhouse grew up in the area and now runs KANKKU, which offers off-road experiences through the majestic national park.

He manages to calmly talk us through the boulders – reminding us that we are driving his own personal truck, so to be extra-careful – and we bounce around happily in the back as our convoy traverses the 19th-century trails.

I feel bad about disturbing the peace in this rugged landscape, but this off-road expedition is brilliant fun.

There's plenty of time for relaxation and recovery when we get back to our weekend home at Lowtherwood, a four-bedroom barn conversion perched above Lake Windermere.

Lowtherwood is the latest addition to the award-winning Holbeck Ghyll Hotel and has everything a weekend house party could want.

Guests are met with champagne or tea and cake, while each bedroom is lavishly furnished

DIVERSITY: The Lake District is a beautiful place to explore, either on foot or in a bright orange 4x4 and has its own enormous en-suite. Upstairs there's plenty of room to lounge around on the inviting sofas and enjoy the view (or the giant TV) – and there's even a private sauna and a hot-tub where you can soak under the stars.

We also have a well-appointed kitchen – but no one from our party does more than look at it as we are sinfully spoiled by the fabulous food on offer at the hotel.

Staying at Lowtherwood – or any of the self-contained lodges within the hotel's landscaped grounds – gives the best of both worlds. It's great to relax in your own private property, knowing the facilities of a first-class country house hotel are just across the field.

Holbeck Ghyll, a 19th-century former hunting lodge, won a Michelin star nine years ago and has kept it ever since.

Of course, there's plenty more to the Lake

District than just gorging yourself on lavish food and gazing stupefied at the view. Keen walkers and mountain-bikers will be in their element – there are lots of easily-accessed trails near Holbeck Ghyll – and history buffs can visit the former homes of William Wordsworth, Beatrix Potter and John Ruskin.

Would-be sailors can test their skills on any of the lakes, while landlubbers can opt for the easier option of a cruise.

Holbeck Ghyll even offers tips for racing fans. Hotel-owners David and Patricia Nicholson have a racehorse named after their pride and joy – and David is more than happy to discuss its recent win at Epsom.

They might not be able to guarantee a return on your investment when the horse races next, but the odds couldn't be better for a fantastic break.

Travel details

Lucy Corry was a guest of Holbeck Ghyll. Prices for Lowtherwood at Holbeck Ghyll start from £1,500 per night, which equates to £187.50 per person (based on eight sharing). The price includes accommodation, English breakfast, tea and cake upon arrival, a champagne reception and Michelin Star dinner in the privacy of Lowtherwood or in Holbeck Ghyll's award-winning restaurant.

YOUR TV REVIEW

■ BY TOM BETTS

MASTERCHEF

BBC Two, 8pm, tonight and Thursday

MARGARET

BBC Two, 9pm, Thursday

NEVER change a winning formula goes the age-old saying, but the producers of Masterchef took no notice of that when they brought the programme back a few years ago.

With super-drawler Loyd Grossman churning out pasta sauces rather than presenting, it was up to newbies Greg Wallace and John Torode to taste test the best of what Britain's amateur chefs could come up with by presiding over a new format which could have upset the long-standing fans.

The new-look show sees cooks thrown into the deep end in different scenarios, rather than just cooking up their best dishes straight off the bat.

A series of different challenges are handed out to contestants such as working in top kitchens and cooking en-masse for troops of soldiers or cub scouts, and all that sort of thing.

The old Masterchef was the perfect kind of show to watch in the run-up to Sunday dinner, but the new format, which has now got a few good years in its new format behind it, is also a decent slice of entertainment itself and has been shifted to midweek on BBC Two.

It manages to be more than just another reality show or cook-off like Ready Steady Cook or Can't Cook, Don't Give a Monkeys, or whatever it's called.

The new pairing are capable hosts too, getting away nicely with a few searing insults, but never rubbing it in too badly. The lads have turned out to be steady hands at the tiller.

Loyd would be proud.

The penultimate episode of this

IRON LADY: Lindsay Duncan plays the role of Margaret Thatcher in BBC drama Margaret series is tonight and the final is tomorrow night, as the three remaining contestants battle it out for the coveted title, before embarking on a lifetime of supermarket tours and appearances on daytime TV.

On Thursday, after the pots and pans have finished rattling, stick around for the channel's take on the last years of Margaret Thatcher's premiership in Margaret, which looks interesting.

The acceptance that it is time to give up the reins of power is the theme, as former trusted colleagues such as Geoffrey Howe and Michael Heseltine stick the boot in to their boss in the early 90s.

The downfall of the Iron Lady, at the time the most powerful woman in the world, should make good TV.

Expect tons of backroom conniving, a lot of stubborn refusals to go and by all accounts a top performance from Lindsay Duncan as the indomitable Mrs T.

PROPERTY NEWS

Vet your tenants before property goes to pot

NORWICH Union has been warning landlords that they should vet tenants carefully and take time over inspecting properties, because of a rise in the use of let residential properties as cannabis farms.

Police figures show there were 5,497 seizures of cannabis plants in 2006/07 – up 34 per cent since 2005 – and, according to the insurer, the cost of claims settled in 2007 rose to more than £1 million.

Intensive cannabis production involves high-powered lamps and irrigation systems and can therefore result in all kinds of property damage, from holes in walls to serious fire damage.

NU property owners' underwriting manager Mike Colmans warns that "with cannabis farming clearly on the rise, there is an increased risk for landlords and their properties".

He adds that landlords may not be aware that their property has been damaged by tenants producing cannabis – however, their insurer may not settle a claim if the landlord hasn't taken "reasonable precautions" in preventing such misuse.

Tories wade into spat over empty homes rise

BRITAIN is increasingly in danger of having an empty houses crisis, according to Conservatives.

They say some of the rise in abandoned properties has been caused by home-owners facing repossession.

Other empty homes were bought by property developers who have since struggled to raise the money to renovate and furbish them for occupation.

The Conservatives say the number of empty homes is becoming one of the emerging issues of the recession and is now a cause of "serious concern".

Grant Shapps, shadow housing minister, said: "The Government has sat back as the social housing waiting list has spiralled to record levels, leaving 1.8 million vulnerable families desperate for housing."

"At the same time the number of empty homes has risen steadily – homes that could be used to house those in need."

"The Government needs to stop thinking about ineffective, headline-grabbing announcements and start thinking about how to help the millions of people waiting for suitable housing."

TESTING THE WATER: Agents have reported an increase in enquiries and 40 to 50 viewings a weekend – but these were resulting in no offers being made on the properties

There may be interest, but that doesn't mean anyone's buying

■ BY CHRIS MURPHY

DESPITE estate agents' best efforts, the number of property sales is at a 20-year low.

Property pricing specialist website Zoopla.co.uk says it has analysed the statistics for the past two decades.

It revealed property sale transactions were at their lowest point in 20 years, and more than 50 per cent down on last year's totals. And looking over the figures, the company said it was often the case that blame could be laid at buyers who couldn't or wouldn't buy.

The new figures show just how weak the housing market was in 2008. Fewer than 727,000 home sales were recorded last year, compared with more than 1.48 million in 2007.

The site can provide free, instant value estimates on all 27 million UK homes and access to more than 15 million property sale records. Using those numbers, it has revealed quite how dismal the state of the British property market was in 2008, with the best month, May, barely racking up 78,000 transactions, fewer than December, the worst month of 2007.

Overall, 2008 saw only 1,990 home sales completed per day on average compared with more than double that at 4,050 per day a year earlier.

With the average home in Britain losing £26,813 in value in 2008 according to the latest figures, a staggering 3.2 million homeowners across the country now face being 'under water', which means having paid more for their homes than they are now worth.

It said there was an increase of 2.7 million British home-owners in this position compared with the start of last year.

Alex Chesterman, boss and founder of the site, said: "One of the best indicators of market direction is often transaction volume and property activity was incredibly weak in 2008, with only 2.75 per cent of the housing stock in Britain changing hands, about half the average volume of the last few years.

"The unprecedented fall in activity brought about by the credit crunch has led to the sharp decline in prices that has been witnessed in recent months.

"With estate agents reporting an increase in interest in the first few weeks on this year, the key to stabilising the market in 2009 lies in the Government's ability to unlock the credit freeze so buyers are able to act on that interest."

MOTORS NEWS

Fiesta bucks trend to keep number one spot

FORD has a runaway success on its hands with the new Fiesta.

It was Britain's top seller in January – its third successive month at number one, despite the motor market being more than 30 per cent down on a year ago.

Fiesta sales bucked that trend dramatically, being up by 28.3 per cent in January when it was also voted What Car? Car of the Year 2009.

And the success should continue with some dealers offering more than £1,000 off '09 Fiesta entry models.

Fiat starlet shows it's got roofless ambition

FIAT has lifted the lid on its latest 500 version – literally.

For the new Fiat 500C is the long-awaited cabriolet version of the cult car of the moment and pays homage to the original 1957 Fiat Nuova 500's fabric roof, by using a roll top approach instead of a full drop-top.

The choice will have been influenced by retaining as much rigidity as possible, without the weight penalty from extra strengthening needed after chopping off the roof and window frames.

Comeback time for the chic Citroën DS label

HAVING created the successful Picasso MPV sub-brand, Citroën will launch an 'affordable premium' line-up next year.

This range within a range will use the evocative DS initials – standing here for 'Different Spirit' – from the brand's futuristic 1955-75 big car series and the DS Inside concept car (pictured) shows the emphasis on sharp design with 'Mini-esque' packaging that should put the British-built icon under pressure.

This concept is said to be based on the DS3 – the first and smallest of the line-up.

NO LAUNCHING MATTER: The quality of the interior of the second generation Lexus IS is second to none complete with top of the range stereo, sat nav and rear parking TV monitor

Partridge endorsement can't knock Lexus' style

COMEDIAN Steve Coogan's odious Alan Partridge alter-ego was one 'endorsement' Lexus could have done without for its original IS model.

The young and image-conscious executive targeted by that car is the very opposite of Partridge, with his naff sheepskin coat and driving gloves.

But the Lexus rose above it and, despite the first generation car's lack of a diesel option, went on to give BMW, Mercedes and Audi a fright in a crucial sector of the market.

Lexus upped the ante for the second generation IS – launched in 2005 and priced from £22,015 – by adding a diesel and creating an even more harmonious and well-made design with a fiery BMW M3-basher in the form of the IS-F V8.

The quality of interior materials also reached new heights while it has one of the best audio packages as standard – 13 speakers plus in-dash six-disc CD changer and a possible upgrade to a Mark Levinson system with DVD plus surround sound as well as sat nav and rear parking TV monitor.

Our test car was the IS220d Sport; a sensible choice with its lively yet frugal 175bhp turbodiesel and an engaging drive thanks to the Sport's chassis management system, delivering high levels of grip and poise even on winding and poorly-surfaced country roads.

It is shaded by the respected BMW 3-Series, but makes up with a more comfortable ride to compete more directly with the all-new Mercedes C-Class.

I was less impressed by the engine; it is decent enough, but does not threaten smooth equivalents in the ubiquitous Beemer, Audi A4 or Merc line-ups.

By now, you may suspect I'm closing in on a damning jack of all trades, master of none verdict, but the Lexus is better than that.

It is actually near the top of the pile in all departments and there are two further factors in its favour: distinctive high-shouldered styling with sharply angled front and rear lights and the Lexus ownership experience.

The latter is the feel-good factor that has made the brand the consistent number one in customer satisfaction surveys.

USED CAR ROUND-UP:

OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

BUDGET MOTORS

MOTORING is being squeezed tight by the recession so it is not just first and old timers chasing used city car buys. These baby cars not only deliver excellent savings, but the compromises are nothing like they used to be; all three (or five – see later) of our chosen bargains are bang up-to-date, drive well, should be reliable and come with a good basic spec. This modest line-up is also relatively spacious and flexible inside, despite compact on-road 'footprints' and should also be cheap to tax and insure.

FIAT PANDA

FIAT'S baby was deservedly European Car of the Year in 2004. It shows that a space efficient interior need not go with a dull utilitarian exterior – the Panda could function as a van, but looks far more interesting. The distinctive five-door Italian is also fun to drive and cheap to insure, tax and fuel, yet features cutting-edge technology. A lively turbodiesel option – averaging more than 65mpg – rugged 4x4 version and hot 100hp model add to the line-up's attractions.

TOYOTA AYGO/CITROËN C1/PEUGEOT 107

TOYOTA masterminded this attractive trio of city cars built at a new Czech production facility, but the Aygo's Citroën and Peugeot sisters have been just as successful. The three and five-door cars feature powerful yet economical three-cylinder petrol engines without impossibly slow acceleration or poor motorway ability. Functional and relatively spacious interiors make them pleasing to ride, while their compact dimensions belie a EuroNCAP four-star safety rating.

KIA PICANTO

FROM majoring on value and very little else, Korea's Kia has become one of the fastest growing car brands in the UK by adding design and customer appeal to its virtues. The five-door Picanto city car highlights this advance with its cheeky looks and generous spec; standard kit includes steering wheel adjustment, remote central locking, ABS, front electric windows, split folding seats and a radio/CD player. Insurance is also cheap and both engine options average well over 50mpg.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Mentors will help you make the right moves

HERNE Bay businessman Andy Harris decided to expand his company, so he turned to C4B (Canterbury For Business) for a Support4Business mentor to help him make the next move.

As owner-manager of Custwin, a website profitability consultancy which works with clients across the UK, he works more or less single-handed from home, and his mentor Tim Bentley helped him out.

A list of Support4Business mentors can be viewed at www.canterbury4business.co.uk.

Small business needs more government help

GOVERNMENT action to stimulate the economy is not working, says the Federation of Small Businesses, which has 7,000 county members.

A member survey revealed recent VAT cuts, bank lending guarantees and pledges on payment practices have had no impact.

Roger House, FSB chairman for Kent and Medway, said: "There's more to be done by Government and banks to ensure businesses survive. There is an avalanche of stumbling blocks stopping this vital sector from surviving and recovering."

Workshops will get you up to date with the law

INTERACTIVE workshops and talks aimed at giving employers an understanding of employment law are being presented by two regional law firms.

Fast food retailers are thriving in these slow economic times

■ BY TONY PATEY

ECONOMIC downturns can have some unpredictable results – as this current recession is proving.

In the 1970s the quadrupling of the price of oil put the previously backwater subject of economics on the map, and words such as 'inflation' and 'money supply' for the first time became everyday phrases.

And in the early 90s people realised that having a massive mortgage was not necessarily the only answer to having a roof over their heads.

Some started renting and going in for alternative living such as moving on to houseboats – a trend being seen again today.

This time round we're also seeing a big change in the landscape of our high streets and urban areas – not just fascinating for economic geographers, but a decisive factor in whether or not more traditional shopkeepers will survive.

Budget supermarkets such as Lidl, Aldi and Morrisons have announced major expansion plans involving thousands of new jobs, and now take-away food giants are also making big strides.

McDonald's, KFC, Subway, Greggs bakers, and pizza empires Domino's and Pizza Hut have all said they've got plans to open more stores this year, again with thousands more new jobs. Subway alone is opening five outlets a week.

But there's an interesting marketing point. They're not just throwing open more doors, they're also taking a look at the whole visual impact of their shops and branding, trying to give potential customers a kind of comfortable feeling about shopping there.

Take McDonald's, for instance, and cast an eye over its new outlet being built at Eureka Leisure Park near junction nine of the M20 at Ashford.

Gone is the emphasis on the tall double yellow arches forming a massive 'M' that used to dominate entrances.

The branding is still there, but very low key. Its design is more retro and muted rather than brash, as Macs outlets used to be.

Perhaps they're trying to catch a change in eating habits which seem to be sweeping the nation as people watch their pennies and find they can eat a takeaway for just about the same as it would cost to cook at home.

And there's no washing-up.

McDonald's restaurants are doing a roaring trade and people who used to go to more expensive restaurants are often staying home and ordering takeaways.

Domino's says that since these customers are used to fairly big bills they tend to spend more than the average customer would.

Domino's chief executive Chris Moore said: "People are now spending more time at home. With all the drudgery and bad news out there they say 'Stuff it, I'm going to treat myself to a pizza and not wash up'".

However, David Haslam, chairman of the National Obesity Forum, is concerned about the effect on the nation's diet and is calling on fastfood giants to spend their windfall profits on better standards and higher quality food.

EMPHATIC: Mike Melford scored two tries as Canterbury romped to their biggest win of the season

Resurgent Canterbury land a few on the Chin

Chinnor 19 Canterbury 53

CANTERBURY ran in seven tries for their biggest league win of the season on Saturday which sent them back into National 3 South's top half.

It was a third straight win for Danny Vaughan's men, who are playing their best rugby of the season and are now just a point from breaking into the division's top five.

Chinnor went into the game in the bottom two, but a 10-10 draw at Merton Lane earlier in the season showed they were still a threat. Canterbury seized control of the game early on and had it virtually won by the interval as they went in 32-7 ahead.

Tries from Mike Melford, Cristof Blom, Pat Sykes and Chris Hinkins ensured the visitors had already won a bonus point before the half-time whistle.

An excellent display by the forwards laid the foundations for a handsome victory and some of Canterbury's tries from deep were spectacular.

The gulf between the sides widened in the second half with further scores from Melford, Luke Harding and Gert De Kock, who added six conversions and two penalties to finish with 23 points.

Chinnor enjoyed their best spell late in the game, scoring two tries. The second came with Hinkins and Chris Tytherleigh in the sin bin for technical offences.

On Saturday, Canterbury aim to win four successive league games for the first time this season when they host Bridgwater & Albion.

Hockey ladies surge back into contention

CANTERBURY ladies climbed back into the Premier Division's top four with a resounding victory away to Clifton on Saturday.

The city club sprinted into a three-goal lead early on thanks to strikes from Jenny Hall, Cindy Botha and Susie Row.

Hall and Mel Clewlow made it 5-0 at the break and despite a brief fightback from the hosts, Susannah Townsend wrapped up a 6-2 victory late on.

In the Men's Conference East, Canterbury stayed third with a 5-4 win against Holcombe. They will hope to stay in touch at the top when they visit Chelmsford on Sunday, while the ladies host Poynton on Saturday.

Crusaders run ends with home defeat

KENT Crusaders' six-game winning streak came to an end on Saturday as they lost to Team Northumbria at home for the second time in three weeks.

The North East side knocked the Crusaders out of the Patron's Cup earlier this month and they were again too strong, winning the Division Two encounter 73-61.

The defeat saw them slip to fourth and with only three games of the regular season remaining, the best they can now realistically hope for is third.

Mads Olesen's side can climb back into the top three with a win at Leicester Warriors on Saturday.

Lillee putting Kent bowlers on the fast track to success

FOUR Kent pace bowlers will be hoping a masterclass from Australian Test legend Dennis Lillee at a top training camp in India will put them ahead of the rest as they prepare to dazzle county bosses this summer.

The pace quartet have just arrived back at St Lawrence after spending ten days at the world famous MRF pace bowling camp in Chennai.

Academy players Matt Coles, 18, who plays his cricket with Hartley Country Club and Adam Ball, 15, from Bexley were joined by development contract players Phil Edwards, 24, from Gore Court and Warren Lee, 21, from Blackheath.

The four had a chance to experience life as professional cricketers, work on developing their bowling technique and tactics, as well as combating the intense Chennai heat.

Academy director Phil Relf, who led the group to India, felt the experience of working with a bowling legend such as Lillee will give the county's up and coming bowlers an insight into what is needed to become a top class cricketer.

He said: "The guys had access to grass wickets and Dennis Lillee on a one-to-one basis. It was a fantastic experience for them to be working under such a trained eye and you could see he was a guy who was very passionate about technique and fitness."

"He saw our guys on day one and within two balls, as well as without the use of video, his trained eye saw things that we spent time analysing on a video for a while. You tended to see an impact with the ball coming out at a better pace and he was an interesting guy to listen to."

Matt Coles was one of the lucky beneficiaries on the trip. The medium pacer from Maidstone has been with the Academy for several years and the club will have to make a decision on his future this year.

He said: "It was an interesting experience and worthwhile because just to hear Dennis Lillee's thoughts on you and his knowledge of the game, was really good. He felt I had an old-style action but felt there was only a few things to work on which is all part of my long-term progression."

Fair cop as tired Oystermen are put away by the police

FOOTBALL

■ BY DAVID PRITCHARD

Whitstable Town 0

Metropolitan Police 3

Forrester 45, Greenaway 61, Sargent 88

WHITSTABLE Town's punishing schedule finally caught up with them on Saturday as they were well beaten by title hopefuls Met Police at the Belmont.

The Oystermen have performed wonders in recent weeks to pull away from the relegation zone, but the fifth game on heavy pitches in a fortnight proved one too many.

Manager Marc Seager was disappointed to see his side's good run come to an end, but could not fault his players.

He said: "We've had three intense six-pointers against teams around us, plus Ashford Town [a 4-1 win].

"The lads have been fantastic but the games have taken a lot out of us. I sensed before the game everybody looked a bit tired. If we had scored the first goal it might have made the difference."

"I'm so proud of my players because we've got the results we needed, anything against the teams at the top is a bonus."

JADED: Jack Tanner evades a tackle but a tired Whitstable were second best on Saturday

Seager named an unchanged side from last Tuesday's win against Ashford, one of Town's best performances of the season.

They were unable to recreate the same level of intensity, but held a powerful Met Police until first half-stoppage time, when Scott Forrester's free-kick deflected off Gary

Whitstable Town starting XI

Sayer and past a stranded Kevin Fewell.

It was a sucker punch just before the break, but Whitstable began the second half looking the side more likely to score. The spell did not last long, however, and James Greenaway made it 2-0 just after the hour mark.

Conceding a third goal two minutes from time was harsh on Town, who had worked hard for little reward.

Fortunately, the defeat made little difference to Whitstable's league position, with only one of the sides below them winning on Saturday.

They have a great chance to virtually guarantee their Ryman League status for next season when they visit a Crowborough side who have not picked up a single point from their last 16 games.

Young goalkeeper Dylan McVicker has moved on loan to Slade Green for a month to get some valuable match experience.

City battle but it's not enough to stay in Challenge Shield

Hollands & Blair 2 Canterbury City 1

CANTERBURY City gave an encouraging performance against Premier Division opposition as they were narrowly edged out of the Kent Intermediate Challenge Shield.

City faced a string of problems before and during the quarter-final. Tony Jackson and Alex Hossick breaking down in the warm-up and full-back Sam Baker was forced off after 30 minutes with a calf injury.

The Gillingham side knocked City out of the Bill Manklow Inter-Regional Challenge Cup earlier in the season and were steely in midfield and hard to break down at the back.

City were under pressure for a large part of the first half, but they carried an attacking threat of their own. First, Royston Gough forced a good save when attempting to lift the ball over the goalkeeper and the striker then connected with an overhead kick which was on target but was well saved.

The hosts went ahead after 55 minutes when Luke Lockhart gave away a free-kick on the edge of the penalty area. Hollands & Blair took it quickly, spreading the ball to Lee Preston, who drove it through the surprised defence.

Wayne Fittall got City back on level terms when he drove the ball across the face of goal. It may have been intended as a shot but Gough accepted it as a pass and fired in a deserved goal.

The game looked to be heading for extra-time but City were caught out by a quick attack down the right flank. The ball was swept across to Preston who had his first attempt blocked by Danny Wrench but he smacked in the rebound.

This Saturday, City are again in cup action as they look to reach the final of the Les Leckie Cup. The semi-final against Oakwood kicks off at Bridge at 2pm on Saturday.

Herne Bay 2 Slade Green 1

Bay breathe life back into season with win

FOOTBALL

Herne Bay 2 Slade Green 1

A BRACE from Luke Harvey saw Herne Bay recover from two demoralising defeats to bounce back into the Kent League Premier Division's top five.

The Bay skipper took his tally for the season to 11 goals before Slade Green pulled a goal back late on.

Bay's season looked to be petering out after elimination from the Kent Senior Trophy at the hands of VCD Athletic the previous weekend and losing 5-1 at league-leaders Hythe Town in midweek.

But with 12 games remaining before last Saturday, Bay can still finish in the top three.

Harvey put the hosts in front on 17 minutes. Neil Perkins had a goal disallowed for offside before the break, but the second goal did come, Harvey finishing a quick counter-attack in the 75th minute.

Former Bay player Shaun Maylon set up a tense finish with a goal five minutes from time, but Bay held on.

England call on Khan to fill injured Freddie's shoes

CRICKET

AMJAD Khan has been called up to the England squad as cover for the injured Andrew Flintoff.

Khan, 28, flew to the Caribbean from New Zealand last Thursday where he was part of the England Lions squad, together with Kent team-mates Rob Key and Joe Denly.

He has now been promoted to the full Test squad as cover for Flintoff who struggled in the drawn second Test with the West Indies as a result of a hip injury.

Khan took two early wickets for England in a two-day practice match against a Barbados Cricket Association President's XI on Sunday.

The Kent fast bowler will hope to impress captain Andrew Strauss ahead of the penultimate game of the series in Barbados on Thursday.

Kent coach Simon Willis said: "This is great news for both Amjad and Kent County Cricket Club. He has looked sharp in the nets and is in good physical shape. He totally deserves his call-up and I am confident that he will do well."

It's the second time Khan has been called up to the full England side after he was brought into the squad for the injured Ryan Sidebottom for the two Tests against India at the end of last year.

It has been a dramatic few months for the Danish-born seamer after having only returned to the Kent side midway through last summer.

Khan had spent 16 months on the sidelines, including missing the whole of the 2007 season, after suffering cruciate ligament damage while on tour with England A.

Khan was also called up to the one-day side as back up for the final two One-Day Internationals in India before the series was abandoned as a result of the terror attacks in Mumbai.
